PRICE TWO CENTS

CLEVER FORGER WORKS OLD GAME

Succeeded in Cashing $7.50 Check to Which Was Signed the Name of Dr. L. B. Hill.

$3.00 DEPOSIT MADE ON HAT

Attempted to Pass Other Paper With Same Signature—Uses Names of Hill and Harrison.

A frazzled, time-worn forgery game was worked here by a stranger Thursday afternoon when he cashed a $7.50 check to which was signed the name of Dr. L. B. Hill. The paper was accepted by Miss Minnie Hustedt, of the Hustedt Millinery store, on North Chestnut street, the man declaring that he desired to make a deposit on a hat which his mother would select later. He succeeded in keeping out of sight from the officers and has not been arrested.

The man, who gave his name as "W. Harrison", called at the store three times during the day. In the morning he told Miss Hustedt that his mother was coming down to purchase a hat and during the afternoon called to see if she had come. When informed that she had not he appeared to be disappointed but said that she would come later. About 4 o'clock he went to the millinery store and again inquired if his mother had selected her hat. At that time he said he wanted to make a deposit on the purchase and asked Miss Hustedt to cash the check. It was agreed that he would deposit $3 on the hat and was given $4.50 in cash.

During the afternoon he called at Mrs. Zelma Leas' millinery store on East Second street and put up the same story offering a check signed by Dr. Hill. Mrs. Leas refused to take the paper and told him to wait until his mother had selected the hat.

The man was supplied with an unlimited amount of nerve and had several different schemes to work. He called at the dressmaking apartments of Mrs. Joseph Reath, East Second street, and said he wanted to make a deposit on a dress for a lady who lived in this city. Mrs. Reath told him that he must be mistaken as she was doing no work for the lady and besides she would receive the money in full when the dress was delivered.

Harrison then went to the Hub Clothing store where his name changed to Harry Hill. He desired to purchase a hat and after looking over the stock selected one costing $1.50. He said he wanted to leave the package there for a while and Claude Carter, who fitted him with the hat, marked his name on the wrapper. Before leaving the store, however, he engaged in quite a lengthy conversation with Mr. Carter telling him that he was a relative of Dr. Hill.

In a short time Hill returned after the hat and was waited on by Herbert Bridges. He offered a check signed with Dr. Hill's name, but Mr. Bridges became suspicious and told the man that he could not accept the paper. Hill said he would step across the street and get the money and would then return for the hat. Mr. Bridges, who is acquainted with Dr. Hill's signature, noticed that the name on the check did not appear to be genuine and after Hill left called Dr. Hill over the telephone. It was then discovered for the first time that the checks had been forged.

Dr. Hill notified the banks and also told many of the merchants of the operations of the forger and warned them against taking any checks with his name signed to them. The police were then informed and started out after the man but he had evidently become suspicious and disappeared. He has not been located.

The forger is described as being a young man, probably not more than eighteen years of age. He was under medium height, dark eyes, dark hair and dark complexioned. He wore a dark pair of trousers and did not have a coat. He wore a small cap and spoke with a husky voice. Those who saw him remarked about his appearance as he is apparently afflicted with tuberculosis. He had an unusually square forehead which was noticed in contrast to his slender face.

Chief of Police Abell saw a young man this morning who answered the description of the former but he was seen by Mr. Carter who said that he would not identify him as the one who had looked at the hats. Hill or Harrison, whichever might be his name, probably left the city when the police were notified and he was likely in a position to see what steps were being taken. It is not believed that he had a confederate working with him.

TOWNSHIP S. S. CONVENTION

Will be Held at St. Paul Church Sunday Afternoon.

The Jackson township Sunday School convention will be held in the Sunday School room of St. Paul's church Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. An interesting program has been arranged and all are invited to attend. Primary workers especially will find Miss Huckleberry's address helpful and the query discussion led by J. E. Graham will touch all lines of Sunday School work.

The program for the afternoon is as follows:
Devotional led by Mrs. Chas. Frey.
Primary S. S. Work... Miss Myrtle Huckleberry.
Male Quartet.
Query Discussion on S. S. Work led by J. E. Graham.
Male Quartet.
Report of nominating committee and election of officers.

Men Wanted
At the Presbyterian church next Sunday evening when the pastor will speak on a subject of interest to Men, as well as to all others. The topic will be "The Effects of Real Merit." Every man in Seymour is urged to attend if he has no other church home for that evening. Every woman is invited and requested to bring the men of her family.

THE BOY SCOUTS AND PATHFINDERS

Organizations Being Planned for All the Boys of Seymour Under Competent Leadership This Summer.

PROF. J. M. THURBER IN CHARGE

Doing a Good Turn to Somebody Every Day, One of the Plans of the New Organization.

Plans are being developed for organizing the Boy Scouts of Seymour. The purpose of the Boy Scout movement is to train boys during the formative years in principles of genuine manhood, clean living as well as to give them athletic sport and a practical knowledge of woodcraft, camp life, etc., that will be helpful to them all their lives. The motto of the organization is "Be prepared,"—to be prepared in mind by having disciplined himself to be obedient and to have thought out before hand any situation which may arise so that he may know the right thing to do at the right moment and be willing to do it,—to be prepared in body by making himself strong, active and able to do a man's work in the world.

The Boy Scout oath reads as follows: "On my honor I will do my best. (1) To do my duty to God and my country and to obey the scout law; (2) to help other people at all times; (3) to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally clean."

Preliminary to the organization of the Boy Scout movement in Seymour, the First Baptist Sunday School of this city has arranged with Prof. John M. Thurber, of Franklin College, to take charge of the work during the summer and enlist as many boys as wish to join the organization and to follow the scout ideals. Prof. Thurber has been the successful leader in athletics in Franklin College during the past season. Under his leadership the baseball team won eight games, lost six and tied one, giving them third rank among the colleges of the state, DePauw and Wabash holding first and second place. He is a man of earnest christian character, who insists that the boys should be useful as well as have a good time for themselves.

Up to this time only the preliminary plans have been laid for organization in Seymour and the boys have been enjoying each afternoon in the city park with games of baseball in addition to helpful work under Prof. Thurber's direction. On Wednesday afternoon they divided into squads and gathered up a large quantity of broken glass which was scattered over the park. Thursday afternoon the boys went in a body to John Huber's just north of the city on Ewing street where arrangements have been made to make a swimming pond for the use of the boys in the organization. Mr. Huber has donated the use of the ground and the boys worked faithfully at shaping up the ground for this purpose. The pond will be from three to four feet deep, so that it will be a safe place for swimming and will give this form of recreation without the danger which attends a visit to White River. The time spent at the pond

TRACTION LINES TO CARRY FREIGHT

Local Companies Are Affected by New Order of Inter-State Commerce Commission.

JOINT RATES ARE REQUIRED

Opinion Referred to Agreement to Extend Electric Road From Columbus to Seymour.

Seymour, as the terminal of the Indianapolis, Columbus & Southern Traction Line and of the Indianapolis & Louisville Traction Railway, is mentioned frequently in the opinion of the Inter-state Commerce Commission which holds that through routes and joint rates must be maintained by the traction companies operating between Louisville and Indianapolis for the transportation of freight. The case was carried to the Commission by the Louisville Board of Trade.

A dispatch from Washington says: "From Louisville, on the south bank of the Ohio river, in the state of Kentucky, to Indianapolis, in the state of Indiana, the direct standard steam railroad of the Pennsylvania lines is paralleled through its entire distance of about 117 miles by a physical through route composed of the following traction or interurban electric railways: The Louisville & Southern Indiana Traction Company operates across the river between Louisville and Jeffersonville, a distance of three miles.

"At the latter point it connects with the Louisville & Northern Railway and Lighting Company, the lines of which extend a distance of eleven miles to Sellersburg; from this point the lines of the Indianapolis & Louisville Traction Company extend some forty-one miles to Seymour, where they connect with the Indianapolis, Columbus & Southern Traction Company. The rails of that line extend from Seymour to Indianapolis, a distance of sixty-one miles.

"The last named line is now operated by the Interstate Public Service Company under a 999-year lease. The latter company, together with the two lines first above mentioned, that form the route running northward out of Louisville to Sellersburg, are owned or controlled by the Middle West Utilities Company, which seems to be a holding company, embracing many lines of traction railway in the state of Indiana and elsewhere that are commonly referred to as the Insull lines. The Indianapolis & Louisville Traction Railway Company, from Sellersburg to Seymour, however, is a wholly independent company. In other words, the two lines running north out of Louisville, and the line extending south from Indianapolis are under a common control, while the connecting link between them is independently owned.

"From the city of Indianapolis a great network of interurban lines extends in every direction, with an aggregate, as is said, of nearly two thousand miles of track, reaching practically all the eastern, northern and western portions of Indiana, as well as southern Michigan and western Ohio. Some twenty of these com-

WHITE RIVER WHIPPED INTO FOAMING WAVES BY THE FISH

Finny Tribe Caused Great Commotion in Water by Hasty Retreat up the Stream.

The farmers living along White River in the vicinity of Judge O. H. Montgomery's farm in Redding township were awakened early this morning by a terrible splashing of the water. The sound was so unusual that an investigation was warranted and it was found that the fish were in an exceedingly nervous state of mind and were chasing about the river in great confusion. From all appearances they were attempting to make a quick get-away and did not delay for formalities. Each seemed to be looking after his own welfare and no time was lost in the race for life. It was noticed that the bass and catfish were more nervous than the rest and would frequently look back as they went scurrying up the stream toward Columbus.

This sudden commotion among the finny tribe was due to the announcement that the annual Montgomery camp would be established today. The catfish and bass from past experience knew that it meant death to some of their number and none were willing to sacrifice themselves. Every year some of the fish have been lured by the tempting bits of bait thrown into the water and have later paid the penalty in the frying pan.

The camp this year is composed of Judge Montgomery, who claims to be the champion angler of the camp, Postmaster E. A. Remy, who specializes in sunfish and croppies, Dr. L. M. Mains, Jr., who vies with Judge Montgomery for the honor position, August Cordes, who furnishes the fish for the camp, C. D. Billings, who landed a bass of legal size last year, and Harlan Montgomery, who gives special attention to the turtle supply. They will remain in camp for ten days and are equipped with enough lines, hooks, casting rods and other fishing tackle to break all former records in southern Indiana.

HOG CHOLERA SERUM WILL BE USED AS A PREVENTIVE

William Helt Has Purchased a Supply and Will Vaccinate Herd of Eighty Head.

The new hog cholera serum will be used by William Helt, who lives near Helt's Mill, to prevent an epidemic of cholera among his herd of eighty head of hogs. A veterinary from Columbus went to Indianapolis Thursday after a supply of the serum and each hog will be vaccinated. This is the first time the serum has been used in this vicinity and the farmers are watching the results closely. It has been an effective preventive in other communities and is being used by a larger number of farmers each year.

Thus far this year no cholera has been reported among the hogs in Jackson and Bartholomew counties, but it is feared that it will appear later in the summer. It is said the hot, dry weather may cause the disease to spread. Each year the loss from this disease is heavy in this vicinity and other farmers may use the serum if the tests prove satisfactory.

MULHALL SAYS HE HAS BEEN WARNED

Star Witness Before Senate Committee Has Promise of a Sergeant-at-Arms.

INQUIRY INTO LABOR AFFAIRS

Gompers, Mitchell and Others Have Been Subpoenaed to Testify Before Senators.

Washington, July 11—It may come to pass that a muscular sergeant-at-arms, taken from the senate force, will be assigned to act as bodyguard for Martin M. Mulhall, the lobbyist. Mulhall's correspondence now in possession of the senate committee, bears out his story that he was in the pay of the National Association of Manufacturers for several years. It was Mulhall's business to do what he could, either personally or by proxy, toward preventing national legislation which the N. A. M. thought inimical to its interests and to push the bills in which it was interested.

Mulhall, who is to be the star witness before the senate lobby committee, complained to Chairman Overman that he had received a distinct hint that it would be well for him to leave Washington. He makes no charges about the warning other than that he believes it was intended to intimidate him.

Samuel Gompers and John Mitchell, also officials of the American Federation of Labor, and George Pope, president, and J. P. Bird, general manager of the N. A. M., are under subpoena to follow Mulhall and it is expected there will be a rush of many of those implicated by him voluntarily to testify. It is the intention of the committee to take the lid off the entire labor situation in the United States.

UNCLE SAM HAS NICE BIG SURPLUS

Fiscal Year's Receipts Exceed Expenses $40,000,000.

CANAL WIPES THIS OUT.

Expenditures at Panama and Public Debt Transactions, However, Create a Deficit of $2,449,000—Increased Expenses, but Surplus Exceeds Last Year's by $3,750,000.

Uncle Sam closed the fiscal year 1913 with a surplus of $40,083,229, representing the excess of receipts over expenditures exclusive of Panama canal and public debt transactions. This exceeds last year's surplus by $3,750,000. The Panama canal expenditures and public debt transactions, however, wiped out the surplus of ordinary receipts over ordinary expenditures and created a deficit for the year of $2,449,000.

Total receipts for the fiscal year amounted to $723,782,921, while the disbursements were $683,699,692. Corporation taxes yielded the government $34,948,870, or $5,365,766 more than during the fiscal year 1912. While customs receipts for the last few months have shown a decrease, as is characteristic of a tariff revision period, the total for the fiscal year reached $318,142,000, an increase of nearly $7,000,000 over the previous year.

Record Drinking and Smoking.
The record drinking and smoking of the American people during the last twelve months brought the federal government the enormous total of $309,478,000 in internal revenue receipts, which was $16,500,000 greater than in 1912 and one of the highest amounts on record.

Under the first year's operation of the new pension law the government paid veterans and widows $175,134,000, an increase of $21,537,000.

The fiscal year closed with $164,704,000 in the general fund of the treasury compared with $167,152,000 a year ago. The cash drawer of the treasury contains $65,523,000 as the working balance of the government. The trust funds of the treasury include $1,086,727,000 in gold coin and bullion.

The government spent $41,741,000 on construction of the Panama canal during the year, making a total of $318,229,000 spent on the canal to date, of which $179,628,000 has been paid out of the general fund of the treasury and the balance from the proceeds of bond sales.

Output of the Mints.
The mints coined during the year $37,497,000, of which $30,058,000 was in gold.

The 7,492 national banks now in existence have a total outstanding circulation of national bank notes of $737,065,050.

Secretary McAdoo announced that the daily treasury statement during the present fiscal year would be issued in a completely changed form, designed to show at a glance the assets and liabilities of the government. It will be in the nature of a budget statement to indicate from day to day whether the government revenues are progressing on a surplus or deficit basis.

The grand total of assets of the government at the beginning of the fiscal year was nearly $2,000,000,000, against which there were liabilities, including the gold and silver certificates, aggregating about $1,725,000,000, leaving balances in the treasury from $250,000,000 to $275,000,000, including the gold reserve of $150,000,000.

CITY RUNS ITS OWN DAIRY.

Cleveland's Wards to Have Milk From Municipal Herd.

Through the purchase and development of a tract of 2,000 acres of land Cleveland has begun a unique municipal experiment. Upon this great area, which is two and a half miles long and more than a mile wide, are located four city enterprises—the colony farm for the almshouse people, the overlook farm for the tuberculosis patients, the correction farm for the house of correction prisoners, and the Highland park farm for the development of a municipal cemetery. The whole tract, named by the city council the Cooley farms, after Harry R. Cooley, director of charities and correction, who has been the father of the plan, thus consists of four estates of 500 acres each.

In the development of the dairy to provide milk for the tuberculosis sanitarium and the other institutions about 100 cows have been bought. The plan is to supply the groups on the farms and also the municipal institutions in the city with pure milk, produced from the best cows living under the best conditions.

The farms are all of rolling clay land, with springs and running streams, making an ideal place for pasturage. The results will be pure milk for the municipal institutions, thoroughbred stock for sale, the enrichment of the great farms and an example of a well kept dairy for the country round about.

UNUSUAL STATEMENT FROM GIRL'S MOTHER

MARGARET MILLER.

This is a picture of Margaret Miller, a Kokomo, Ind. girl, who a short time ago was suffering from the ravages of tuberculosis of the arm. It seemed a "hopeless case." But her mother heard of Nature's Creation—the standard remedy for tuberculosis and asthma. What happened is told in the following letter: "I am truly thankful for what Nature's Creation has done for my daughter Margaret. For the past five years she has been a constant sufferer from that dread disease, known as tuberculosis of the arm. It was in her right shoulder, near the collar bone, and the physicians thought they would perform an operation, but said that they didn't think it would do any good. So I heard of Nature's Creation, and commenced giving it to her about a year ago. She has been improving ever since. She doesn't complain of her arm at all any more. I can highly recommend the medicine to any sufferer from tuberculosis. Mrs. Josephine Myers, 821 Bell street, Kokomo, Ind."

The original letter from Mrs. Myers is on file in our office along with scores of others, telling of the remarkable benefits derived by men, women and children from Nature's Creation.

Misleading Names.

Perhaps the most misleading name on the map is that of Tierra del Fuego, the "Land of Fire." The name would imply that it was a land of volcanoes in constant activity. The fact is, however, that it contains no volcanoes and is a country of perpetual wet and cold. It got its name from the fact that it was sighted by Magellan at night in consequence of a large fire having been ignited by the natives on shore. The same discoverer happened to have very fine weather after he had rounded the Horn and so gave the name "Pacific" to a part of the ocean which is exceptionally subject to storms.

PARCEL POST TO CUT LIVING COST

Proposed Changes Will Eliminate Middlemen's Charges.

TO RAISE WEIGHT LIMIT.

Maryland Congressman Hopes to Reduce Living Expenses by Changes in Present Parcel Post Law—To Enlarge Zone System and Create Lower Transportation Costs His Aim.

The fact that a three pound package of butter for which a farmer of his acquaintance received 72 cents and which Representative David J. Lewis paid $1.05 for upon its receipt suggested to the congressman one reason for the high cost of living and its remedy.

To eliminate middlemen's charges and lower transportation costs by a more extensive system of parcel post is Mr. Lewis' proposal to reduce living expenses. Mr. Lewis, who represents a Maryland district in congress, with the author of the parcel post bill which, with some amendments made by the senate, produced the system now in operation.

The changes he proposes in the present law are as follows:

Raise the weight limit to 100 pounds. No weight limit on shipments delivered to the railway terminal by the consignor and collected from it by the consignee.

A zone system of 100 miles to each zone, including the local zone.

A rate of one-half cent per pound for each zone plus the initial charge of 3 cents, arbitrary, for the first pound.

An improvement of classifications to include books.

Effect of Changes.

The effect of these changes, according to Mr. Lewis, would be both to reduce carriage charges and the cost of living.

It would do this, he says, by providing adequate transportation for retail shipments—that is, in sizes to suit the consumers' needs, direct from the producer.

"Farm products—eggs, chickens, butter, hams, etc.—are usually produced in retail form," says Mr. Lewis, "but there is now no system of direct transportation from the farm to the kitchen. They must go into the roundabout processes of commerce, which double the price to the consumer."

"There is now no transportation for retail shipments, as the railway is engaged only in the wholesale or commercial business. Its minimum weight is 100 pounds—too high for retail purchasers. Besides, it does not articulate with the farm. The express company does not articulate with the farm, and its rates are three times normal and prohibitive. Transportation accounting burdens prevent both railway and express companies from making rates proportional to the weight of the small shipment."

Mr. Lewis regards the parcel post as the natural agency to carry retail shipments. It does not do so now because of two restrictions on its operation—the prohibitive weight limit and the abnormal pound rate. The latter, according to Mr. Lewis, is from four to six times the cost of service on short distances.

What Plan Would Accomplish.

Here, in a word, is what would happen if Mr. Lewis' plan were to become a law:

Farm and standardized products would be marketed direct to the consumer at one-half cent a pound in the first zone, embracing an area of 20,000,000 acres.

At 1 cent per pound in the second zone, with an additional area of 60,000,000 acres.

At 1½ cents a pound in the third zone, with an additional area of 100,000,000 acres.

In other words, a family could draw its butter, eggs and other farm supplies from the farms contained in an area of 20,000,000 acres and pay thereon the almost inconsiderable transportation charge of one-half cent a pound.

In connection with the rural free delivery, which is, of course, available to patrons of the parcel post, a new industry of suburban gardening would grow up, in the opinion of the author of the plan, and an enormous business in fresh garden and farm products would supplant the present boards of storage goods. The trucker would be relieved of the necessity of buying and maintaining an independent transportation system of his own.

HOSPITAL COURTING NOOKS.

Cincinnati Institution to Be Provided With Some Cozy Corners.

Cincinnati is building a new hospital which, when completed, in about eight months, will be one of the largest in the country. One feature of that part of the structure which will house the nurses will be some cozy corners in which the nurses may receive their male friends. Already these pleasant places, in which settees will be installed, have been styled "courting nooks."

Dr. C. K. Holmes, the father of the institution, is credited with suggesting the cozy corners. In its general aspects the nurses' home will be like a big private hotel, with a roof garden, private kitchen, private cooks and a private laundry.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee. Advertisement.

SNAKES AS THEY FEED.

When They Start Swallowing They Never Know When to Stop.

The swallowing process is a serious matter for any serpent, which must draw itself painfully over its prey by hitching its jaws, armed with backward curving teeth, forward, on one side and then the other, and by similar movements of the neck, ribs and skin, until the whole mass has finally reached the prolonged stomach. The snake's jaws are attached to the skull, and the bones of the head and neck are connected by elastic ligaments which may be so stretched that an object considerably larger than the head itself may be swallowed if rightly seized; hence prey is usually turned about after killing it until its nose is foremost, when the undertaking begins. A copious flow of saliva assists deglutition.

Once started, a snake never knows when to stop; has little ability to do so, indeed, and the prey rarely kicks loose. It has happened frequently in zoological collections that a large snake has swallowed a smaller one mechanically, as it were, when each has seized the same food animal. Both swallowed at it until the larger reached the nose of the smaller diner and then kept right on as long as there was anything in its mouth, unless the victim of this discourtesy managed quickly to let go of the fare and escape.

Bartlett tells us, in his book on the care of animals in the London zoo, of one case where a boa constrictor devoured a cage mate nine feet long who did not feel disposed to let go of his half of a pigeon. Next morning this boa could not curl up, but had to lie straight out for several days, and a month was spent in the digestion of this inhospitable meal. Snakes will keep pushing their jaws over a string of frogs or mice tied together until they have got outside the whole chain. These animals have little, if any, sense of taste and when they get their teeth into anything soft try to eat it.

INSPIRATION.

We are always inspired, but we incessantly stifle the inspiration. God does not cease to speak, but the noise of the creatures without and of our passions within confuses us and prevents our hearing. We must silence every creature, including self, that in the deep stillness of the soul we may perceive the ineffable voice.—Fenelon.

WISCONSIN TOWN WAKES UP FAMOUS

Woman's Activities Provided Paved Streets and Bridge.

HOW SHE AROUSED THE MEN

Raised Money For Town Improvement by Giving Parties—Proceeds Devoted to Cleaning Up Place and Paving the Main Street.

A woman has put Waukau on the map. Waukau is in Wisconsin. It has a population of less than 500, but because of the woman the less than 500 have a $1,000 bridge and sidewalk.

Mrs. Peter Macdougall first awoke to the fact that the one bridge over Waukau's one street wasn't more than half a bridge after forty-five years of wear and tear and that the street wasn't more than half a street because there was nothing much but Wisconsin clay to walk on. The day she took this in with that new sense of civic responsibility that is developing in women everywhere was the day she began to act. Stepping into Bagley's, she talked with the general store man about the probable cost and ways and means of raising the money. He said it would cost more than she could ever get, but she tacked up a subscription paper in the store, and the work of bridge building and sidewalk building had begun.

You may not know Waukau, but you probably know some place not unlike Waukau, so you know just how hard it was to start something in Waukau. The first thing on the program was a box social. A box social is a party to which every girl takes a lunch in a box, and the boxes are auctioned off to the men. The box social netted $25. Summer came, and ice cream socials got popular. Meantime the sidewalk had been started, and by autumn the street between Bagley's and the depot, a stretch 3,400 feet long, was paved, and there was $300 on hand, with a deficit of $83 to be made up. By now nearly everybody in Waukau was as full of fried chicken, deviled eggs cake and ice cream as the law allowed, and the winter's program had to show change. Mrs. Macdougall got a slight variation with a chicken pie social that brought in $32. Then she got the schoolteachers to make up among them a purse of $25. Then she had an old folks' dance that was so popular that even a violent storm could not keep people away. Net result, $47.

Then she got the ladies of the Woman's Christian Temperance union to have a sale of fancy articles and a ten cent supper, and that meant $37 more. Then she had another old folks' dance. Life in Waukau had become just one long gay whirl; but, what with the entertainments and private subscriptions and donations of things for Mrs. Macdougall to sell, $1,250 had been contributed, and Waukau had a stone bridge and a cement sidewalk from the depot to the bridge. More over, the bridge has a gas pipe railing, and the total cost of bridge and railing was $345.

The people over in "Canada," the part of Waukau north of the bridge, came to Mrs. Macdougall for help. They wanted a sidewalk too. They needed it more than the other half because the lay of their land was lower. Mrs. Macdougall began all over again. Again she fed Waukauans on chicken pie and ice cream. Again Waukau whirled in the dance. When she had got together $350 the Canada sidewalk was begun. It isn't finished, and the money is not in hand to pay for all of it. Mrs. Macdougall says that about $500 more is needed. She says getting money out of Waukau now is like getting blood out of a turnip.

Of course the men voters of Waukau helped Mrs. Macdougall materially in all this. One gave her $15, one gave her $2, an Omro merchant gave her 15 cents, two of them gave her the gravel needed, a musician played at one of her dances for nothing, a great many gave promises, and any number gave advice, not forgetting Tom Malady, now of Elk River, Ida., but once of Waukau. He sent a check for $25.

If any other woman who has ever faced and solved a civic problem of this constructive nature knows of any new ways of raising money that might work in Waukau, Mrs. Macdougall would like to get into immediate communication with her.

For Sunny Spots.

Among the many showy flowering plants for very dry places none excels the common blue plumbago. It is doubtful if we have another plant that will blossom so freely under extremely hard conditions. Among herbaceous plants the common lavender will thrive under equally hard treatment and lack of treatment. We so freely water poinsettias that one would scarcely credit them with being nearly at the top of the list of drought resistant plants. After the first year in the garden it really matters little whether they are watered or not. In growing and flowering season they are both hungry and thirsty and can safely be watered and fertilized very heavily, and with profit too. In strictly flower plants the common petunia will bloom profusely throughout our hottest and driest months without food or water and seedlings seem to do as well when left alone as when too much coddled.—Los Angeles Times.

DEWEY DISCUSSES THE NATION'S NAVAL NEEDS.

We Are Paying For Insurance, He Says, That Does Not Insure.

Declaring that "adequacy" of naval strength on the part of the United States "calls for a navy second in strength to that of England only" and that in his opinion "inadequacy is an invitation to war," Admiral Dewey in an article entitled "Naval Efficiency a Public Duty," which he wrote for the official program for navy day at Newport, R. I., adds that the nation is now paying for naval insurance which does not insure.

"I believe it is the duty of each generation," Admiral Dewey says, "to pay its own insurance and not to thrust its burdens on the generations that come after, and the insurance for peace is a navy strong enough to compel it. The only function and justification for the existence of a navy is the preservation of peace. To perform this function the navy must be adequate, and, though so much discussed in these recent times, the word 'adequate' as applied to the navy has but one meaning, and that is an 'adequate navy' is a navy of a strength sufficient to meet and defeat any probable enemy."

"This strength is not absolute, but relative, and varies from period to period as the other naval powers of the world vary their naval strength. At the present period 'adequacy' on our part calls for a navy second in strength to that of England only, and in my opinion inadequacy is an invitation to war."

"We ourselves, through lack of foresight of our fathers and grandfathers, paid the penalty of our generation in the loss of hundreds of thousands of lives, and our sons and grandsons have been paying the costs of the billions of dollars wasted and the hundreds of millions in pensions for which they were mortgaged, and they still continue to pay."

"We are paying today for the navy as an insurance which does not insure us, roughly, $1.50 per capita per annum. Besides what has already been paid in lives and money, we are still mortgaged, by lack of foresight in our fathers, to the extent of the national debt and the additional $1.80 per capita per annum that we are paying in pensions."

"Shall our lack of foresight continue this system of mortgaging the coming generations, or shall we add the relatively small sum needed to the insufficient insurance we already pay to make that insurance adequate?"

MADE CHIVALROUS BY LAW.

Proposed Chicago Ordinance Forces Men to Give Up Seats.

Chivalrous Victor J. Schaeffer, alderman from the Twenty-second ward of Chicago, would make all other Chicago men equally chivalrous by threatening them with a fine or imprisonment. Recently he drafted a chivalry ordinance providing:

"That any male person upward of the age of twelve years and of sound body who shall decline to relinquish his seat to any female person in any street car or other public conveyance, provided there are no unoccupied seats, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100 or imprisonment for a period of ninety days or both."

Then came the suffragists, who recently won the ballot for women. They intimated plainly that they believed the chivalrous alderman was angling for female votes.

TRACTION LINES

TO CARRY FREIGHT

panies, with lines in the states of Indiana and Ohio, are named as co-defendants herein. All of them, including the lines from Louisville to Indianapolis, while primarily carriers of passengers, also participate in carrying degrees of activity in the handling of less than car load freight business, and many, if not all of them, have tariffs on file with this commission naming their local freight or express rates, and in some cases showing also joint rates with connecting electric lines.

The Louisville commercial interests in this proceeding asked for an order establishing through rates for less than carload traffic to points north of Seymour and more particularly to Indianapolis and interurban railway points reached through Indianapolis. Over such through routes when established they asked for joint rates that would not exceed the present rates of steam railways on the same articles to the same points. The local rates of the various defendants now in effect are in a general way the same as the rates of the competing steam roads between the same points.

The testimony of manufacturers and jobbers at Louisville indicates that in the sale of their merchandise at local points in Indiana and western Ohio, where they meet the competition of Indianapolis, the need of a package freight service over the through routes here demanded is keenly felt, and that Indianapolis, with such an expeditious and efficient service at its command, and with such routes in effect, over which the rates are the same or less than the freight rates of the steam railroads, has a distinct advantage in soliciting the business of retailers and consumers in that territory.

The testimony also fairly established the contention of the complainants that a schedule of express rates for this service, as distinguished from freight rates, would practically prevent the use of the proposed through rates. It is shown, also, as indicated above, that in proportion as the rates over these routes may exceed the rates of the steam roads, the value of the routes will be reduced.

"The lines beyond Indianapolis took no active part in the hearing and they seem not to be opposed to the establishment of through routes."

The commission, in passing on this case said:

"Upon the record we find that there is neither impossibility nor impracticability in the situation before us. Physical through routes already exist and are in actual use. The four defendants operating the route between Louisville and Indianapolis now conduct a through passenger service of six limited trains, running daily in each direction, for which through tickets are sold. The northern link in the routes conduct a local package freight service between Indianapolis and Seymour.

"The three lines forming the other three links in the route not only conduct a local freight service over their respective rails, but join in through rates from Louisville as far north as Seymour. For a short time in 1908 there were joint through class rates in effect all the way from Louisville or from New Albany, just across the river, to Indianapolis. They were cancelled at the instance of the Indianapolis, Columbus & Southern and it is this company that objects to their restoration. The traffic now moves between Seymour and Indianapolis, a one-line haul, and goes on through rates between Seymour and Louisville, a three-line haul. Certain perishable freight, such as berries, moves all the way from Jeffersonville to Indianapolis on joint through rates.

"All that is necessary to satisfy this complaint with respect to general traffic is the withdrawal by the line of its insistence upon a transfer of traffic at Seymour. As a matter of fact the lines north of Indianapolis apparently stand ready to participate in through movements from Louisville."

All the traction companies centering in Indianapolis were defendants in the case. Speaking of the properties south of Indianapolis, the commission says: "In the history of these properties there is one fact of significance, although we have attached little importance to it in reaching the conclusions here announced. When its promoters planned the construction of the Indianapolis & Louisville traction railway, hereinafter referred to as the independent link in the physical route between Louisville and Indianapolis, the Indianapolis, Columbus & Southern, formerly known as the Irwin line, had its southern terminus at Columbus, a small point in the state of Indiana.

"The promoters of the independent line had planned to start at that point and to build south to Sellersburg, but the owners of the Irwin line objected to this, and after some sharp skirmishes between the two interests an understanding was reached by which the Irwin line was to extend its rails south from Columbus to Seymour, and the independent line was to commence at that point and build south to Sellersburg. This agreement is embraced in written contracts offered in evidence, which upon their face contemplated the subsequent establishment not only of the through passenger service between Louisville and Indianapolis, but of a joint through freight service. The passenger service has long been in effect, but the establishment of the freight service has been blocked by the objections of the Irwin line."

CONSERVATISM.

One day through the primeval wood
A calf walked home, as good calves should.
But made a trail all bent askew,
A crooked path, as all calves do.
The trail was taken up next day
By a lone dog that passed that way.
And then a wise bellwether sheep
Pursued the trail o'er vale and steep
And drew the flock behind him, too,
As good bellwethers always do.
And from that day, o'er hill and glade,
Through those old woods, a path was made,
And many men wound in and out
And dodged and turned and bent about
And uttered words of righteous wrath
Because 'twas such a crooked path.
But still they followed—do not laugh—
The first migrations of that calf
And through the winding roadway stalked
Because he wobbled when he walked.
So men prefer to go it blind
Along the calf paths of the mind
And work away from sun to sun
To do what other men have done.

TAX MAIL ORDER HOUSES.

Congressman Declares They Deplete Population of Towns.

The great American mail order houses are fast putting the country merchant out of business, asserts Representative Hinebaugh, the Illinois Progressive, who recently inserted in the Congressional Record in the house an argument in support of his bill taxing these concerns for rural benefits. His measure proposes that the revenue thus raised shall be expended in building country roads.

Mr. Hinebaugh says that the decrease in village population is due to the elimination of local merchants by mail order competition and that a social deterioration of rural centers is the net result.

"One mail order house in the city of Chicago has sixty-three acres of floor space," he says. "Another one in the same city, according to a statement under oath of its president, made a net profit of $17,000,000 on last year's business. A million dollar building is to be erected by Montgomery Ward & Co. in Kansas City to duplicate its present building at Nineteenth and Campbell streets.

"This mail order corporation is also about to enter New York, San Francisco and Portland.

"It should be perfectly apparent to every thinking person that the country merchant must go out of business as the great mail order houses gradually close down upon the local markets. In eight of our great states many towns have lost population during the last ten years.

"It is contended by the friends of the mail order houses that as a great economic question the rights of the consumer and purchaser to buy wherever he can obtain the lowest prices should not be raised and that if the extension of the mail order business means the elimination of the country merchant then the country merchant must go.

"If such arguments were logically sound, which I do not admit, there is still the social, moral and religious view to be considered. The retail merchant is the backbone of the country town. The mail order house is his worst enemy. The farmers need the town, and the town must have the farmers."

Representative Hinebaugh concluded his statement with the assertion that "the great mail order houses have no difficulty in underselling the retail dealer, no matter how much he may reduce his margin of profit. Buying as they do from prison contractors the products of convict labor, they secure many of their manufactured articles at prices that would be utterly impossible to obtain if made by free labor. This source of supply is, of course, not open to the small retailer even if he was inclined to avail himself of it."

WAY TO KEEP BABIES WELL.

Guard Against Heat and Bad Food, Experts Tell Mothers.

The District of Columbia health department has sent out printed instructions on "How to Keep the Baby Well." It advises:

Be sure of the milk you purchase. See that milk is pure and wholesome; then keep it clean and cold.
Scald the nursing bottle often and thoroughly; do not tolerate long tube attachments.

Give the child as much cool water as it will take.

Keep the child in the open air of parks, but not exposed to the sun's hot rays.

The clothing of the child should be light and loose.

Children should be bathed two or three times each day during hot weather.

At the first appearance of physical ailments call a physician.

Improper food combined with high temperature is the great destroyer of babies, causing 95 per cent of the deaths.

will be under the direction of Prof. Thurber just as all the other amusements are. On returning yesterday from this work at the pond, the boys came in at the scout pace, fifty steps running and fifty steps walking alternately.

The number of boys attending has been increasing each day and about fifty have indicated a desire to join the scout organization. One thing, which is insisted on in the Boy Scouts, is that a good turn shall be done somebody every day by the boys. They report so far the running of errands, sweeping of walks, washing dishes, helping their parents in various ways. Many other plans of helpful work will develop as the organization progresses.

While the movement is started under the direction of the First Baptist Sunday School, the plan is not to confine it to boys of this Sunday School only but to have the organization for all the boys in the city, who wish to join. One thing that will be insisted on however is that the boys attend their own Sunday School regularly and refrain from the use of profanity, tobacco and alcoholic liquor as a beverage in addition to the regular Boy Scout pledge.

The national organization of Boy Scouts limits the age to twelve years and over. Many boys in Seymour between five and twelve years of age are anxious to organize, and to meet this condition they will be organized as the Pathfinders and will be subject to the same rules as the Boy Scouts and will meet at different times and will be eligible to the Boy Scouts' organization in passing the age of twelve years. Commencing next Monday Prof. Thurber has arranged to meet the Pathfinders in the mornings from 9 to 11 o'clock at the city park, the Scouts in the afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock at the park, and at 6 o'clock in the evening the older boys and those who are at work during the day for a game of ball on the West Second street diamond. The following application blank has been prepared and will be signed by each boy who wishes to become a member of this organization:

"Being familiar with the Scouts' oath and pledging my loyalty to it, and agreeing to attend my own Sunday School regularly and to refrain from the use of profanity, tobacco and alcoholic liquor as a beverage, I hereby signify my desire to become a Boy Scout or Pathfinder as qualified by the age limits."

Sunday School Lesson

SUNDAY, JULY 6, 1913.

MOSES PREPARED FOR HIS WORK. Exod. 2:11-25; Acts 7:17-29; Heb. 11:23-27.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth. Matt. 5:5.

In Acts vii, 22-29, we have a full comment upon the first part of our lesson and must note these facts: Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians and was mighty in words and in deeds. And when he was full forty years old it came into his heart to visit his brethren, the children of Israel. He supposed that his brethren would have understood how that God by his hand would deliver them, but they understood not. How briefly are summed up his forty years at the court of Pharaoh! He may have been forty years ahead of time in his thought of delivering his people, for Acts vii, 29, 30, tells us that he was forty years a stranger in the land of Midian before he received his call at the burning bush. And yet we cannot but think of Him who came unto His own and His own received Him not (John i, 11). Stephen thus spake of him in Acts vii, 35.

In Heb. xi, 24-27, the time of our lesson is also referred to and the position which Moses might have filled as the son of Pharaoh's daughter. But he chose rather to suffer affliction with the people of God than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season, esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt, for he had respect unto the recompense of the reward. He endured as seeing Him who is invisible. What wonderful words these are, and what an insight they give us into Moses' knowledge of the God of Israel and of the promises to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob—wisdom which never came to him from the wisdom of Egypt.

According to our lesson verses, although Moses sympathized with his afflicted brethren, he did not know the living and true God as he did later on, for before he slew the Egyptian task master he looked this way and that way to see that no man was watching. He was afterward afraid and fled for his life to the land of Midian. He had been from childhood to the age of forty under the training of the wisdom of Egypt, but he required to be forty years more at the school of God, learning more fully the wisdom of God, as David did when he kept sheep, as John the Baptist did until he was thirty and as Saul did for three years in Arabia. Nothing can equal a training in the school of God.

Following him to Midian, we find him by a well delivering the daughters of a prince or priest of Midian from the shepherds who oppressed them and assisting them to water their flock. The daughters reached home earlier than usual that day, and when their father, Reuel, or Jethro, inquired the reason they replied that an Egyptian delivered and helped them. So he was sent for to come and eat with them, and, being content to dwell there, Jethro gave his daughter Zipporah to Moses to be his wife. It is not without a purpose that the Spirit has recorded for us the finding of a wife by a well and by or in connection with the watering of a flock, as in the case of Isaac, Jacob and Moses.

The first well in the Bible is the well of Him that liveth and seeth me (Gen. xvi, 13, 14), but the most prominent well is Beersheba, the well of the oath, making us think of the faithfulness of God. In Jer. ii, 13, He calls Himself the fountain of living water. The whole purpose of this age is the gathering from all nations an elect church, a bride for Christ, and it is being done by those who have themselves become wells of living water by receiving Christ (John iv, 14). Moses called his first son Gershom, a stranger here (verse 22, margin), for he said, I have been a stranger in a strange land. If we are in Christ we are strangers and pilgrims here, a peculiar people, to show forth the praises of Him who hath called us out of darkness into His marvelous light (1 Pet. ii, 9-11). His second son he called Eliezer (my God is a help), for he said, "The God of my father was mine help" (Ex. xviii, 4, margin). Stephen also mentions these two sons in Acts vii, 29.

The closing verses of our lesson tell of yet another king of Egypt and of such oppression of Israel as made them groan and cry, and their cry came up unto God, and He heard their groaning and remembered His covenant with Abraham, with Isaac and with Jacob. He heard the cry of Abel's blood; He heard the cry of the lad Ishmael; He heard the cry of the iniquity of Sodom and Gomorrah. He hears the cry of all the oppressed and in His time will surely do somewhat.

The iniquity of the Amorites in the land of Canaan was getting full (Gen. xv, 14, 16), and the nation of Egypt was fast ripening for judgment, and Moses, the deliverer, was being prepared to be a great deliverer, as he kept the flocks of Jethro and communed with God. On all sides God was working, and it is even so today, for another deliverance of Israel is drawing nigh, and He has sworn to plant them in their own land with His whole heart and soul, and they shall never be pulled up any more (Jer. xxxii, 41; Amos ix, 15). Our God is unto all His people a God of deliverance and delivereth them from all their iniquities (Ps. lxxviii, 19, 20, R. V.).

Oklahoma Man Tells About Kidney Remedy.

Several days ago I was taken with severe pains in my back, due to diseased kidneys and was forced to give up my daily labors. I heard of your great kidney remedy and resolved to try it. I did so with wonderful results.

Since taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root I have had no trouble from my kidneys. I am giving this testimonial of my own free will to let others know the wonderful merits of Swamp-Root.

If you should care to, you are at liberty to publish this testimonial whenever you choose.

HAPPINESS.

Do not run after happiness, but seek to do good and you will find that happiness will run after you. The world will seem a very good place and the world to come a better place still. The beautiful thing about life is that, no matter how lowly our place is, it is in the King's sight. There are a great many things we cannot do, but we must do what we can, especially the little duties. —Margaret Sangster.

FOUND ITS GOLDEN HEAD.

Riddle of a Marble Column in Italy Read by a Beggar.

Near the monastery of San Vito, in Naples, stood a marble column that had been erected by an eccentric Frenchman about the beginning of the last century. On it were written in French the following enigmatic words: "On May 1 every year I have a golden head."

The inscription sorely puzzled the inhabitants of Naples. On May 1 the year after the erection of the column a great crowd came to it in the hope of finding the top covered with gold pieces. Needless to say, they went home with their pockets as empty as they were when they came.

For several years people came to see the promised wonder and went away disappointed. At last the authorities had the column taken down in the belief that treasure would be found beneath it. Nothing but earth was found, and so the column was set up again. Obviously the words had a mystic meaning, but no one was clever enough to guess it, and for years the riddle remained unsolved.

Finally in 1841 a ragged beggar named Annibale Tosci noticed the inscription. He stood looking at it for a long time while he pondered its meaning. Then suddenly the solution of the puzzle flashed into his mind. He waited patiently until May 1 before he tested the accuracy of his interpretation of the mystic words.

On the day mentioned in the inscription Tosci, bearing a pick and shovel, set out at daybreak for the column. He arrived before any chance visitors, and as soon as the monastery's bells tolled 6 he started digging in the ground covered by the shadow of the top of the column. He had not dug long before he came on a satchel that contained 80,000 francs. The inscription was a true one—the head of the column covered the golden treasure every year on May 1.

Annibale Tosci, the beggar whose sharp guess had given him comparative wealth, became a landowner near Mantua. He died at the age of ninety-four.—Youth's Companion.

Look Out For Poison Ivy

Keep Your Blood Pure and Danger will be Avoided.

All Blood Disorders are Knocked Out by S. S. S.

Strolling through the woods or clearing brush, picnickers, hunters, fishermen—look out for poison ivy. And in the meantime keep your blood pure by using S. S. S. If your skin is rough with eczema, pimples or any other eruption, S. S. S. stimulates the fine network of blood vessels in the skin to dry up and heal all sore spots.

S. S. S. will do this positively. It dominates the principle of osmosis, stimulates the cells of the skin to select their own nutriment from the blood, made pure and healing by the wonderful medicinal ingredients of this famous blood purifier. It is a safe remedy, as it contains no minerals, and yet its action is a marvel.

You can get S. S. S. in any drug store, but insist upon having it. The Swift Laboratory in Atlanta, Ga., prepares this famous blood purifier, and you should take no chance by permitting anyone to recommend a substitute. And if your blood condition is such that you would like to consult a specialist freely, address the Medical Dept., The Swift Specific Company, 186 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

A Life Sentence.

Said Mr. Joacker, who was reading the paper, "Another poor wretch has been given a life sentence at hard labor."

Said Mrs. Joacker, who was embroidering blue roses: "Probably he deserves it. What is he guilty of?"

"Fraud and no visible means of support. He obtained clothes and a fine turnout with no money and nothing collectible. He seems to be larger and stronger than most of that class, yet it is plain that he has never done a tap of work, though he has managed to live well so far. But the poor fellow takes his sentence hard and cries piteously, protesting his innocence."

"The wretch! He must have dealt with perfect fools!"

"No; his victim is our own friend Jack Smith."

"That clever lawyer! Do read to me all about it!"

"Born to Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, a twelve pound boy."

REAPING BENEFIT

From the Experience of Seymour People.

We are fortunate indeed to be able to profit by the experience of our neighbors. The public utterances of Seymour residents on the following subject will interest and benefit many of our readers. Read this statement. No better proof can be had.

Mrs. L. Sage, 319 W. Tipton St., Seymour, Ind., says: "I know that Doan's Kidney Pills are thoroughly reliable and can recommend them. I took this remedy a year ago when my back was so painful and lame that I could not stoop. My kidneys were weak and I was languid and nervous. My head often ached so badly that I thought it would split. Doan's Kidney Pills removed all the pains and aches and made by kidneys normal. I have told many other people about my experience and it gives me pleasure to do so. Other members of my family have taken Doan's Kidney Pills and in each case benefit has been received."

Falling From a Horse.

Knowing how to fall from a horse is an art, and it is here that a professional rider or an amateur who is in daily practice has a big advantage over one who gets on a horse's back occasionally. The one may fall as often as the other, but the professional will be uninjured, while the occasional will probably need an ambulance.

WHAT TO DO WITH TOMATOES. TOMATOES are probably the most popular of all summer fruits, for they really are a fruit, though we are accustomed to think of them as vegetables and serve them as accessories to meats.

Panned Tomatoes.—Wash and cut in half good sized, solid tomatoes. Place skin downward in a buttered baking dish. Put a lump of butter on each tomato, sprinkle with salt and pepper and bake until soft, but not browned. Have ready as many slices of toast as tomatoes and lay the tomatoes on the toast. Make a rich cream sauce, pour over the tomatoes and serve.

Baked in a Dish.

Tomatoes and Macaroni.—Take a quarter of a pound of macaroni, four or five tomatoes, one ounce each of butter and grated cheese, pepper, salt and breadcrumbs as required. Boil the macaroni in salted water till tender, but not soft. Butter a shallow fireproof dish, sprinkle with breadcrumbs, then put in a layer of macaroni, then another of sliced tomatoes, seasoning all with pepper, salt and cheese and adding a few little bits of butter. Continue till the dish is full and sprinkle breadcrumbs lightly over. Bake for half an hour and serve at once.

Tomato Hash.—Take two cupfuls of tomatoes, chopped; two cupfuls of cooked diced meat, one and one-half cupfuls of stale breadcrumbs, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of onion juice, three saltspoonfuls of salt, one-eighth saltspoonful of pepper. Melt butter and pour over breadcrumbs. Add salt and pepper, then stir in tomatoes, meat and onion juice, seasoning to taste. Place mixture in buttered baking dish, covering with a few of the buttered crumbs, and bake until brown.

Flavored With Mushrooms.

Baked Tomatoes.—Take tomatoes of even size, smooth and round in shape. Cut each tomato crosswise into halves, scoop out the seeds and part of the pulp. Chop the solid pulp and for six tomatoes add a heaping tablespoonful of grated cheese, two fresh mushrooms, a large spoonful of fine dry breadcrumbs, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, pepper, paprika and salt. Blend all together with a tablespoonful of butter, chopping the mushrooms fine. Fill the tomatoes with this and place in a buttered baking pan; add seasoning and bake in a moderate oven.

CHAPTER VI.

The Black Night.

Kate's Narrative.
"I, Boulton Wemyss Taylor, Commander R. N., retired, being of sound mind in a dying body, do hereby make my last will and testament:
"And do appoint the lady known as Madame Scotson my sole executress and trustee of all property which I may die possessed of;
"To pay my just debts, and to administer the remainder on behalf of my grandson, James Taylor,
"Until at his coming of age he shall receive the whole estate, if there is any;
"Save only that I bequeath to Madame Scotson my sword and the Victoria Cross;
"And with regard to burial, it is my will that no money whatever shall be spent, but that my body, wrapped in the flag by right of her majesty's commission, shall be consigned to the earth by my neighbors; that no friend of mine shall be allowed to stand uncovered catching cold, or to wear unseemly black clothing at the service of the resurrection, or to toll bells which should be pealed when the soul passes to God, or to make pretense or parade of grief for one who is glad to go."

The months of nursing were ended. No longer should Nurse Pantan and I be afraid when our patient was good, or rejoice when fractious whims and difficult absurdities marked those rallies in which he fought off death. At the last, after many hours of silence, he asked me in a boyish voice if he might go up-stairs to see his uniform. In his dreams he was leaving school to enter the royal navy.

Billy was away on an errand to the Falls, and it was Nurse Pantan's watch below, when at ten in the evening I saw the change come very suddenly. The face of my dear friend, no longer old, but timeless, reflected an unearthly majesty.

For the next hour I was busy rendering the last services, in haste, for the lamp had a most peculiar smell. I took it away and lighted candles, but it was not the lamp. Spreading the Union Jack upon the bed, I bolted from that room. For a time I sat in the dining-hall but could not stay there. Even in the barroom I still had to fight off something intangible, a sense of being watched, a presentiment of evil coming swiftly nearer.

Closing the door which led into the house, I opened that which gave upon the yard, then placed a flickering candle on the counter, and my chair in front of it facing the darkness.

In the presence of the dead which makes their resting-places serene with quiet beauty, instinct with tenderness toward all living hearts. That presence had entered the good log house, a home of human warmth, of kindly comfort, made holy, consecrated, where people would hush their voices, constrained to reverence.

And in the gracious monotone of the rain, compound of voices joined in requiem, I felt a soothing melancholy beauty, knowing well how peace not of this world had come into the home-stead.

But outside that, beyond, in the dread forest, a threat, a menace filled the outer darkness. Fear clutched at my heart, a presentiment told me of evil, of instant danger. Then, as though the horror in the night moved other hearts as well as mine, the Chinese cook came groping his way through the dining-hall and humbly scratched at the door. I let him in and he crept to a stool in the near corner. I whispered to him:

"Are you frightened, Sam?"
"Too plenty much," he quavered, "me flitted bad."

Soon Nurse Pantan joined us, her hair in corkscrews, looking very plain, peevish because she had not been called at midnight. "What's the matter?" she asked crossly, and for answer I pulled down the blinds. She shivered as she passed the open door to take a chair behind it. She begged me to close the door, but the night was warm, and besides I dared not. Nurse and Chinaman each had a glass of port, and so did I, feeling much better afterward.

An hour passed, the Chinaman nodding like those ridiculous mandarin figures with loose heads, the nurse pallid against the gloom, staring until she got on my nerves. I always disliked that woman with her precise routine and large flat feet.

Far off I heard the thud of a gunshot, then three shots all together, and afterward a fifth. The evil in the night was coming nearer, and I said to myself, "If I were really frightened I should close that door. I'm half a coward."

The hero himself had strung his Victoria Cross upon a ribbon which I wore about my neck. Could I wear the cross and set an example of cowardice to these poor creatures who crouched in the corners of the room? To show fear is a privilege of the underbred. But I did long for Jesse.

Through the murmurs of the nearer rain, I felt a throb in the ground, then heard a sound grow, of a horse galloping. The swift soft rhythm, now loud, now very faint, then very near echoed against the barns, thundered across the bridge, splashed through the flooded yard, and ceased abruptly.

Billy had come home from the Falls, he was stabling his roan, he was crossing the yard in haste, his spurs clanked at the door-step and, dreading his news, a sudden panic seized me. I fled behind the bar.

He entered, astream with rain, shading his eyes against the candle-light; then as I moved he called out, as though I were at a distance, begging me for brandy. His face was haggard, his hand as he drank was covered with dried blood, he slammed the glass on the counter so that it broke.

"You heard the shots?" he said.
"At Spite House?" I whispered.
He nodded.

"You were there?" I asked.

"Half a mile beyond. When I got there it was all dark. Looked in through the end window, but the rain got down my neck, so I went round. The front door was standing open. I listened a while. No need to get shot myself. Thought the place was derelict. Then I heard groans.

"Struck a bunch of matches then, found the hall lamp, and got it alight. Wished I'd got a gun, but there wasn't nothing handy except the poker, so I took that and the light—just followed the groans. He was lying on the bar-room floor."

"Brooke?"
"Yes. Shot through the throat, blood spurting down the side of his neck, making a big pool on the oil-cloth. You know the thing you make with a stick and a scarf to twist up? A tourniquet, yes. Well, it choked the swine, so I quit. He whispered something about my thumb hurting the wound, so I told him my father's neck hurt worse.

"Up to that I thought he was just acting, playing pathetic to touch my feelings. Once he muttered your name, and then he was dead."

"Brooke dead?"
"Yes, he'd been shooting Polly, too. I traced her blood tracks all the way to the front door. Hello, what's that? I thought I heard—"

I listened and there was only the sound of the rain.

"I suppose it's all right," said Billy, "we'd better close that door, though."

But before he could reach the door, Nurse Pantan called him away to her corner, where she spoke in a whisper so that I should not hear, sending him, perhaps, for her cloak. Meanwhile I came from behind the counter to my former seat before the open doorway, where I sat staring into the darkness, unable to feel any more, but just numb. Across my weariness flickered the mournful soliloquy of a poor barn-door fowl—"Yesterday an egg, tomorrow a feather duster! What's the good of anytin', why, nothin'."

Then I, too, heard a sound in the night, and because Billy and the nurse were muttering, I stood up with the candle-light behind me, trying to see in the darkness. Billy said afterward he had moved quickly, to shut the door, but I waved him back just as the shot rang out.

The explosion blinded, deafened, seemed even to scorch me, while the mirror on the wall came crashing down. Stunned, dazzled, horrified, I felt a dull rage at this attempted murder.

A second revolver-shot stirred my hair, and I'm afraid that I lost my temper. I am not a fish-fag that I should stoop to fighting a creature such as Polly, but I would have died rather than let her see one trace of fear.

Billy rushed past the firing to reach the door and close it, but I ordered him to desist, then grasped the candle and held it out to show a better light.

"Lower your lights!" I shouted into dark, "you fired too high!"

A revolver crashed on the door-step, and low down within three feet of the ground, I saw a dreadful face convulsed with rage, changing to fear. The woman was sinking to her knees, she buried her face in grimy, blood-smeared hands, and rocked to and fro in awful abandonment of grief.

The danger was over now, the menace of evil in the night had vanished. I felt an immense relief, with hands wet, mouth parched, knees shaking, and great need of tears. I knew the strain had been beyond endurance, but now it was gone, although a velvet darkness closing round me, black night swinging round me, sickness—I must not faint, when I had to fight, to keep command, to set an example worthy of Jesse's wife. And there I was sitting in my chair, with drops of sweat forming and pouring on my forehead. Billy, groping on the floor at my feet, had found and lighted the candle, and was holding the flame in the palms of his hands till it steadied and blazed up clear. "Buck up, missus," he was saying. "Cheer-oh. Don't let 'em know you swooned. Grab on to the cross, and make it proud of you. That's right. Laugh, mum! Laugh! Wish'd I'd half yer grit."

I had come to myself and only Billy knew, who was loyal. As the candle blazed up I saw the Chinaman glowering like some toothless mask of yellow india-rubber, but that nurse still kept up her silly screaming, until I ordered her to shut her mouth, which she did in sheer surprise.

There lay Polly prone across the doorway on her face, racked with convulsive sobs, until feeling, I suppose, the lashing rain on her back, she rose on hands and knees like some forlorn wild animal crawling to shelter, while behind her stretched a trail of wet and blood. I stared until in shame she sat up, still for all the world like an animal lost to human feeling, and to woman's dignity, until she looked at me a wan shamed smile seemed to apologize. She sat back then against the log wall, limp, relaxed with weakness.

"Nurse," I called, still with my gaze on Polly, "this woman is wounded. You are a nurse. You claimed to be a nurse."

But Miss Pantan indulged in hysterics, so I turned to Billy. "Run into the house, get the hip bath, warm water, blankets, bandages."

"Aye, aye, mum," he touched his forehead, and swinging the Chinaman to his feet: "Come along, Sam," he grunted, and hustled him off on duty.

Polly looked up, trusting me with her tawny bloodshot eyes. Her voice was a dreary hoarseness, demanding liquor. But with an open wound, to quicken the heart's action might be fatal, and Polly knew well it was no use pleading. Instead of that she pointed at the nurse, and said, "Send that away."

I turned upon Nurse Pantan who sat forsaken and ostentatious in her corner. "Go," I said, "and make beef tea."

Sniff.

I took her by the shoulders, and marched her out of the room, while Polly grinned approval. I came back and asked where she was wounded. She pointed to the left hip, but I dared not remove any clothing which might have caught and sealed the flow of blood. A sole diet of alcohol and months of neglect had made her condition such that I shrank from touching her.

"So you're Kate," she lay against the bottom log of the wall, head back, eyes nearly shut, looking along her nose at me, "Carrotty Kate."

Her own tawny hair, dragged, and hung in snakes, was streaked with dirty gray.

"Ye took Jesse," she said in weary scorn, "so I ruined him. Then this Brooke, he fell in love with yer, so I murdered him. Take everything, give nothin'; that's you, Carrots, give nothin'. That's you, Carrots, give nothin' away, not even a drink. And I gave everything.

"So you're good, and I'm bad; you're high-toned society, and I'm a poor sporting lady. Oh, I saw ye lift yer skirt away when ye passed—calling yerself a Christian, when just one word of Christian kindness would have saved the likes of me.

"Ye needn't look over my head as if I wasn't there. I'm no fairy, I ain't—no dream. I'm facts, and ye'd better face 'em. 'Sisters of Sorrow' they calls us, who gave everything, who gave ourselves.

"And you good women pride yerselves in virtue, which ain't been tempted. Your virtue never been out-doors in the rain, gettin' wet. Your virtue never been starved and froze, or fooled and betrayed. Your colors ain't run, 'cause they've never been to the wash. You don't know good from evil, and you set thar judgin' me. Tears running down yer face, eh? You think you struck it rough when you came up agin me. Poor Carrots playin' Christian martyr. I done you good if you know'd it. I'm all the schoolin' you got in real life. I waked ye from dreams to livin'. And you an' me is women, sisters in pain. I wish'd

"But mine are blue."

"I made first grab. You can have green, and a large mouth, and your Christian name is Carrots. Hello, here's Baby David."

My son was coming through the scented dusk, and in his arms he carried a large dog, a china dog with gilt muzzle, split from the nose to tail, but carefully mended.

"Sonny," said Jesse, "don't you drop Maria, or she'll have puppies."

"I did, and she didn't; so there! Something dropped out, though. See, mummie."

David had thrown Marie into my lap, and danced about in the gloaming with some strange trophy, the tail of a large animal.

"Sort of reminds me," said Jesse, "of being a little boy. That's the Inspector's tale. This is a long way, too, from the Labrador."

The wind made quite a disturbance, telling the pines to hush, while both my son and Jesse wanted to play with the wolf tail, and would not be quiet, though already the stars and the fireflies had lighted Cathedral Grove, and the great river like an organ crooned the first deep notes of nature's evening-song. An awed expectant silence came to us.

"Lighten our darkness," said the matter. Nothing matters. It was this Brooke which done for me, not you or Jesse. Brooke's only a thing I took in like a lost dog 'cause he was hungry. He said he'd manage my business, and he shoredly did—invested all I'd got in a governess, and a ben-fire at Mathson's, and a stampede of mules. Then he fooled a widow down to Ashcroft to start him running a tourist joint, and I was to be turned out. And he fell in love with you.

"I guess that's all, excep' I got to tell you one thing. It was nursing the sick men kep' me straight all them years, kep' me from drink. You see I was meant for a nurse, trained for a nurse—until—until—well, never vod mind. Brooke stopped the nursing, and I drank. I'm only a nurse gone wrong.

"Yes, your eyes is wonderin' why they don't come back with them bandages, and the bath. Don't worry about that, 'cause I'll be dead by day-break. Jesse loved yer. Brooke loved yer, and somehow, well, I'm kinder rangin' that way myself. And if I go, you'll get back Jesse, eh?"

Rallying what courage I had left, I knelt down and kissed my sister, my poor sister. For a moment I let her stroke my carrotty hair, which she liked. Then I ran to hurry my people to bring the beef tea, the hot water, the bandages. I found that wretched nurse detaining Billy and the Chinaman, with some pretense that I must not be disturbed. I was telling her to get out of my sight, to go to her bed, when a revolver-shot rang through the echoing house.

Polly had crawled to the door-step, found her revolver. She who gave everything in life, had given me back to Jesse, and lay dead, her forehead shattered in with the revolver-shot. For some seconds Billy and I hung back, watching from the doorway while a slow coil of smoke unfolded in the wan light of the dawn. The rain had ceased, and the east was all aglow with golden radiance.

Billy knelt and touched the poor-broken forehead, then looking up at me, "This time," he said, "it's real."

EPILOGUE.

Once more with Jesse in Cathedral Grove! The breath of evening stirred its tangled coral, the long needles clustered in globes were swaying as censors sway, with heavy incense. Beyond the purple night swept up over glowing cliffs to where the upper forest like an edge of flame burned against deeps of sky.

"Come to the hilltop: blackbird chor-lsters
Peal their clear anthem to the kneeling gorse."

Jesse lay dreaming while I sang to him. Crisp silvered hair, and the deeply graven lines of his dear face, gave him at rest a sweet sad dignity; but presently he would look up, his big mouth humorous, his eyes alight with fun, a man of commanding power matured in wisdom, in sympathy, and valor to lead his fellows.

Through the east window of the grove, I could see a little procession of my closest friends pass on their Sunday stroll. First came Pete, ill at ease in his Sabbath suit of blacks, and with him, arm in arm, was Mrs. Pete in silk, full-skirted, prickly, and so very grim. Then Billy passed slowly by, his mother stumping beside him, bound to keep the pace. They had the new rabbit with them, collared and chained like a bulldog, and were followed by David's nurse, dear Patsy, Billy's wife—plucking my young anemones—the wretch.

Out on the perilous edge of Apex Rock I could see young Mr. Nisted, Father Jared's nephew, a pupil in Jesse's school of colonial training, with rod and line he was seriously fishing—for birds!

"Don't you reckon," said Jesse, re-lighting a stale cigar, "that's it's time we stopped our book?"

"Oh, but—"

"It's tempting Providence, young woman; it's encouraging the police. From the moment you started the thing, we've had more'n our share of adventures. Put up a notice, 'Book Closed. No more adventures need apply. Try Surly Brown for a change."

"But what shall we do?"
"Publish the blamed thing, and serves it right. Throw it to the critics."

"But it's all secrets!"
"Change the names and places. We'll be 'Mr. and Mrs. Smith,' well-meaning private persons located somewhere west. I'm going to have blue eyes."

"But mine are blue."

"I made first grab. You can have green, and a large mouth, and your Christian name is Carrots. Hello, here's Baby David."

My son was coming through the scented dusk, and in his arms he carried a large dog, a china dog with gilt muzzle, split from the nose to tail, but carefully mended.

grave old trees, "we beseech Thee."
"By Thy great mercy," pleaded the little flowers.
"Defend us from all perils," the small birds twittered.
"And dangers of the night," the aspens quavered.
"For the love of Thy only Son," cried the South Wind.
"Our Saviour Jesus Christ," a woman's voice responded.
"Amen," the cliffs were breathing.
"Amen," the high clouds echoed.
"Amen," said the organ river.
And from the reverent woodlands came:
"Amen. Amen."

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

A daughter was born July 8, to Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Foster, south of the city.

Mrs. Lee Smith and daughter left this morning for Chicago to join her husband who has a position there.

Mrs. Frank Cox and daughter, Miss Jewel, left Thursday evening for Cash, Ark., to join Mr. Cox and they will make their home there.

Miss Amy Wright, of Medora, is improving from an operation for appendicitis which she recently underwent at the City Hospital.

Miss Alice Sullivan, who has been spending a week here with her sister, Mrs. Roscoe Speer, returned to Valonia today. She is just recovering from an attack of malaria fever.

Miss Gladys Richards, of Clear Springs, who is a patient at the City Hospital, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis, is improving and will be able to return home in a short time.

The condition of Dr. Charles E. Gillespie, who fell from a bridge near Crothersville Sunday night, is very encouraging today. He is rapidly gaining strength and his back which was badly sprained is improving. He remains at the Schneck hospital.

John Gossett, who suffered a fractured hip several days ago, is improving at the City Hospital. He recently met with an accident while working at Medora and lost his right foot. He was walking on crutches and is passing through the gate one crutch struck the side of the fence throwing him to the ground.

Walter Darling, the engineer on the ill-fated passenger train that was wrecked at Sparksville Sunday morning, is improving from injuries he received when he was pinioned under the wreckage of the engine cab. His right leg was broken and he was severely bruised. He is still at the City Hospital.

The Pennsylvania bridge at Rockford caught fire from a spark from an engine Wednesday night and the flames were extinguished by the train crew of the southbound accommodation, No. 36. The flames were not discovered until the passenger train was on the bridge and the coaches were brought to a quick stop. The trainmen had little difficulty in putting out the fire and the damage is small.

C. D. Hopewell, proprietor of the Empire Livery Barn, has sent to the police officers of the surrounding towns a description of the horse and buggy which was stolen from him several days ago by a stranger. The man hired the rig with the understanding that it would be used only in the city for about two hours. No trace of the horse and buggy can be found and it is not known in what direction he went after leaving Seymour. It is now believed that the stranger hired the rig with the intention of stealing it as it has been several days since he took it and nothing has been heard from him.

A hayfield on the farm of Charles Elliott, one mile southeast of Grammer, caught fire shortly after dinner Wednesday and did considerable damage before the flames were extinguished. The fire started shortly after noon in a most peculiar way. While working in the field the men found a bumble bee nest. They cut the hay from around it and raked it away. Later they thought there would be no danger of the fire spreading so they set fire to the hay left standing over the nest. They had hardly lighted the hay when the wind carried sparks to the stubble field and which set the cut hay on fire. More than half of a 15-acre field was burned and three loads of hay were destroyed.

Republic of Women's Embassy.

London, July 11.—The Lord Mayor has made preparations to receive twenty delegates representing the American Women's Republic, who have notified him that they will be in this city from July 13 to 16.

They are coming, it is announced, as the representatives of America's womanhood to present to the women of London and Great Britain a plea for a world-wide permanent republic of women, whose membership shall embrace the best womanhood of all nations, and whose mission shall be for world-wide peace among all nations. Permanent peace must be the accomplishment of woman, inasmuch as she bears the burdens of war.

Of this embassy, Belya A. Lockwood, L.L. D., is "Dean."

Is Shorty Dippy? Nope! Huh?--Ask Slim Jim

FROM THE GRASSVILLE
SATURDAY NEWS

BIRTH NOTICE

BORN
TO THE WIFE OF "SHORTY"
MEMBER OF THE GRASSVILLE
POLICE FORCE

A SON!

SOME SON I'VE GOT HERE!
BELIEVE ME! GOSH! WONT
THE CAP AND LANKY BE PINK WITH ENVY - GEE!
I CANT GIT DOWN THERE
QUICK ENOUGH!

WHOO! ITS HERE!

WOT THE
SAM HECK!

GREAT GUNS
HES DIPPY-

A SON, AND A
PERFECT LIKENESS
OF THAT WHICH STANDS
BEFORE YOU!

WOT
YOU?

SHORTY'S GONE
AND LEFT HIS BABY OUT ON
THE STREET ALL
ALONE. I'LL
HAVE TO TEACH
HIM A LESSON

GRASSVILLE

ALL RIGHT SKEPTICS
WOT YOU ARE!
COME SEE AND BE CONVINCED.

ALL RIGHT!
PAPA!

DO YOU THINK
THE CHAP WILL BE ABLE TO CATCH
SLIM JIM?

ME

YOUR HUSBAND WAS
CARELESS MRS. SHORTY
AND LEFT YOUR BABY
RIGHT OUT ON THE S
ALONE - SO I BROUGHT HOME

SOME
SON!

THE JOKE'S ON US LANKY - BUT
GOSH! SHORTY
TAKES IT
SERIOUSLY

HELP! HELP!
SOMEBODY'S
STOLEN ME
SON!

HES DIPPY IN
THE CONK FER
SURE. BUT WELL
FOLLOW HIM AN
SEE WOT HAPPENS

HELP! WIFE, HELP!
SOMEBODY'S STOLEN
OUR SON! HELP!

THE POOR
SIMP!

POOR SHORTY!
WE'LL HAVE TO SEND HIM TO THE BUGHOUSE.

HER
are all misunder-
ever saw one who if plain, did you?

Hairbreadth Harry

Again Sees Belinda Snatched
From His Side

HER LIMITATIONS
Can you cook on an emergency?
No, sir, but I can on a gas stove.

HA! THIS IS WHERE THEY ESCAPED, SO WHY CAN'T I?

ROLL THAT ROCK OVER HIS ONLY EXIT.

THERE'LL BE NO ESCAPE FROM YOUR LIVING TOMB

WHERE AM I?

THE BEAST IS COMING TO!

IF YOU'LL DO A LITTLE TUNNELING FOR ME I'LL GIVE YOU THIS LUMP OF SUGAR

ARE TURNED AND RUDOLPH IS NOW A THE CYCLONE CELLAR WITH THE DEAD PER, WHY NOT ESCAPE AS THE OTHERS DID?

RUDOLPH WILL PERISH IN THAT LIVING TOMB

WE NEED WORRY ABOUT HIM NO LONGER

YES

NOW THAT ALL DANGER IS PAST WILL YOU BE MINE FOREVER AND FOREVER?

SAVE ME!

GONE!

WE THOUGHT THAT SCOOPER A DEAD ONE BUT A SECOND LOOK REVEALS THE FACT THAT HE IS COMING BACK TO LIFE. THIS MAY CAUSE CONSIDERABLE TROUBLE.

IT NEED HARDLY BE SAID THAT A SUBWAY SCOOPER HAS NO SENSE OF HONOR AND NOBODY KNOWS THIS BETTER THAN RUDOLPH, FOR A LUMP OF SUGAR IT WILL DO MOST ANYTHING

WE'LL LEAVE THAT SORDID CLAMMY UNDER- F FOR A WHILE AND REVEL IN A BIT OF INTEREST, FAR, FAR FROM CARE AND TROUBLE

NOTHING IS MORE SOOTHING TO THE FRAZZLED NERVES THAN A CALM SUMMER NIGHT IN A SYLVAN DELL, WITH A FULL MOON, AND AN ENCHANTING GIRL BESIDE YOU.

BUT THE NEXT MOMENT BELINDA SUDDENLY DISAPPEARED INTO THE BOWELS OF THE EARTH!!

A MOST FOUL AND REMARKABLE DISAPPEARANCE! SHOULD N'T WONDER IF RUDOLPH HAD SOMETHING TO DO WITH IT, WE'LL LOOK INTO IT THOROUGHLY NEXT WEEK.

KEEN CUT
u marry him if you were any one that asked me, if

Mrs. Rummage

There's Many a Slip
'Twixt The Cup And The Milk

THAT SETTLED IT
He-If you refuse me my blood will be upon your head. I cannot live without you
She-Well, self preservation is the first law of nature; I cannot live with you.

OBIE! YOU KNOW THE DVISED YOU TO DRINK ILK, SO I BOUGHT A A BARGAIN-GO OUT HER

HUH? GOLLYWOBBLES! YOUR BARGAIN CRAZE IS SOMETHING ATROCIOUS!

ME MILKIN' A NANNY GOAT! WHAT NEXT?

BE GENTLE - "NANNY" IS SUCH A SENSITIVE SOUL

TEE HEE! OBIE CAN'T CATCH HER

WHAT CAN TER BE?

DID YUH GET TH "NUMBER OF TH' CAR THAT HIT YUH?

MADAM! THAT BRUTE'S NAME IS NOT "NANNY"-IT'S "BILLY!!"
